

Quick Start Guide: Understanding High-Level CPD Requirements (HLRs) for Intensive Care Medicine

As a Specialist Intensive Care Medicine Physician, you are required to complete a high-level CPD requirement (HLR) Educational Activity (EA).

What you need to do

A specialist intensive care physician (including all fields or specialty practice) must complete an airway management of critically ill patients' activity ONCE every three years that is of a minimum three hours duration and involves an in-person practical workshop, preparatory and post activity components that specifically consider:

- airways assessment
- approaches to difficult airway and airway emergencies
- teamwork and leadership in an airway crisis
- familiarity with equipment
- CICO algorithms (can't intubate, can't oxygenate)
- management of tracheostomy emergencies
- simulation activities that should include performing intubation on appropriate mannequins to expose participants to difficult airway scenarios and include team-based responses.
